

The Daily Courant.

Tuesday, March 28. 1704

From the Brussels Gazette, dated March 18.

Nismes, March 7.

THE New Converts that were order'd to retire into the Towns assign'd them, have part of them joyn'd the Camisars, who are now more cruel than they had been hitherto. The 1st Instant a Troop of 20 of these Miscreants on Horseback, advanc'd into the Plain of Beaucaire, where they burnt 6 Farm-houses, and Massacred 48 Old Catholicks. The next day the Dead were carried into Beaucaire to be Interr'd, but the Townsmen were so incens'd at the sight, that they ran to Arms, and had not the Governour took under his Protection and into his own House 2 or 3 Families of New Converts, they would certainly have put them to the Sword. Tho' the Townsmen did not stop there, for 7 or 800 of them are march'd into the Country to seek the Camisars. We receiv'd Advice on the 2d, that the Curate of Mialer was kill'd at the Gate of Anduze; 14 Horsemen passing by him, he, taking them for the King's Soldiers, ask'd what Regiment they belong'd to, we'll tell you cried they, and immediately one of them cleft his Skull with a Scimitar. Yesterday a Woman reported to be the Mistress of Cavalier, one of the chief Leaders of the Camisars, was hang'd here and died a Protestant; At the same time a Brigadier of his was broke upon the Wheel, and died a Roman-Catholick, 12 other Camisars were brought Prisoners higher to day. The Rebels in the Vivarez are utterly dispers'd, so that People may travel through that part of the Country safely; which is owing to Monsieur Julien's having made the several Corporations answerable for the Murthers and Robberies that shall be committed within 4 Miles round them.

From the Rotterdam Gazette, dated March 24.

Tournon, March 8. Monsieur Julien defeated a Party of the Camisars, the 24th of last Month, in the Village of Francassin, which he caus'd to be pillag'd and burnt, and all the People in it, of whatever Age or Sex, to be put to the Sword; he likewise set a Price of 500 Crowns on the Heads of St. Jean and Combas, the chief Leaders of that Party of the Rebels. This cruel Execution keeps other Places thereabouts in Awe, nor are the circular Letters sent by Monsieur Julien to every Parish in the Vivarez less dreadful to the new Converts, who have begun by his Order to rebuild at their own Charge the Churches burnt by the Camisars.

From the Brussels Gazette, dated March 21.

Avignon, March 10. The Marshal de Montrevel is at present in the Neighbourhood of Sommieres to see the Orders he has publish'd for quieting the Com-motions in Languedoc executed, and has written to all the Officers under his command, to execute his Orders punctually in the Places where they are quarter'd; And we learn from the Upper Sevennes, that Monsieur de la Planche has caus'd several new Converts who broke these Orders to be punish'd. The Marshal de Montrevel takes up all the young Men in the open Country whom he finds able to bear Arms, to make them serve in the King's Troops in other Countries; lest they should joyn the Camisars, who within a few days have committed great Cruelties about Uzes, Nismes, and Beaucaire, where they burnt several Houses, and kill'd all the old Catholicks they met. A Party of them have penetrated into the Vivarez, where they endeavour'd to stir up the new Converts to Arms, but not being able to succeed in it because of the Arrival of 3 Battallions of Swiss, who were order'd to march thither to keep the Inhabitants in Awe, they fell to their accustom'd Cruelties, pulling down divers Crosses, and setting fire to several Churches. Monsieur Julien is march'd thither, with part of the Troops he commands, and has defeated and dispers'd them.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated April 1.

Leiden, April 1. Letters from Nismes of the 14th of last Month, which came through the Neutral Countries, advise, that the Marshal de Montrevel arriving there the 7th, the New Converts of the 3 Estates, viz. Gentlemen, Lawyers, and Merchants, waited on him to welcome him, to offer to take Arms against the Camisars, to put an end to the Troubles of the Country, and to assure him of their Fidelity to the King: Instead of accepting their Offer, he told them, he was well inform'd they had private Meetings among themselves, that they supplied the Camisars with what they wanted, and gave them Intelligence of the Designs and Motions of the King's Troops: that the King was assur'd the Camisars were upheld by them, and that he was resolv'd to put an End to it; the more, because the Court was satisfied the Camisars had laid a Design to make a new St. Bartholomew, i. e. to Massacre all the Catholicks. But, said the Marshal, the Catholicks will perhaps be beforehand both with them and you, they are extremely incens'd, and it will not be long in my Power to restrain them. These Letters add, that this Discourse put the new Converts into a great Consternation; And that the Old Catholicks who have taken Arms against the Camisars call themselves Cadets de la Croix, and pillage, burn and kill without Mercy.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, April 1.

Nismes, March 14. The 11th of this Month the Cadets de la Croix burnt the Village of Garrigues near Uzes, after they had forc'd some Intrenchments and put those that defended them to the Sword. They have likewise burnt several Farms belonging to the New Converts. Mean time the Country complains of the Disorders they commit. The Marshal de Montrevel, who went from hence some days ago, has given Orders for demolishing all the Walls that stand on the sides of the great Roads, and those who will not demolish them themselves are oblig'd to pay the Soldiers who do it for them. The time prefix'd for doing this, ends to day. The Marshal de Montrevel, who was expected here to day, is not return'd yet.

From the Amsterdam Courant, April 1.

Lorrain, March 25. They write from Paris that an Express from Monsieur Orry has brought Advice from Madrid, that the King of Spain would stay at Almaraz 14 Days, in which time a Council would be held to consider what Enterprize to begin with, and that 'twas thought Elvas, a Place not far from Badajos, would be first attack'd. They write likewise, that the Marshal de Villeroy is to have 11 Lieutenant Generals under him, and the Marshal de Tallard 8. And that the Duke of Mantua is shortly expected at Paris, where the Palace of Luxemburg is fitting up for him; they tell us he will keep himself incognito during his stay there, and go by the Name of the Count of St. Salvador. They add, that the Grand Prior of France laid Siege to Revge the 12th of this Month. Among several Edicts lately

Registered

Registered in the Parliament of Paris, that one was a new Excise of 3 Livres on every Bullock that is brought into any of the great Towns of the Kingdom, 40 Sols on those that are brought into the little Towns, 12 on every Calf, and 8 on every Sheep. The Envoy of Portugal is gone from Madrid to return to Lisbon, without taking an Audience of Leave of the King.

Falmouth, March 23. Yesterday put into this Port a Dutch Ship with Provisions bound home: At the same time arriv'd a Ship from Nevis in 5 Weeks and 3 days, the Mr. reports, that those Seas are very much infested by French Privateers, who about 14 days before he left Nevis, took in sight of Antego an English Ship of 18 Guns from London bound for Antego. About the same time the Prince Pacquet-Boat, Capt. Buck from England, arriv'd at Nevis. He adds, that the Sheerness Galley hath of late taken 2 French Privateers, and 1 French Merchant Ship of 14 Guns bound home, and retaken an English Merchant Ship from Guinea; the French Merchant Ships was taken in the Road of Guardalupa so near the Shoar, that the Enemy's Shot from Land kill'd some of the Sheerness's Men. On the 19th instant about 14 Leagues South from Cape Clear, he fell in with the Medway who is cruising thereabouts.
